

From Fields To Global Markets

How Netsurit's IT solutions empowered Groep 91 Uitvoer's agricultural transformation—improving connectivity, reliability, and data-driven operations across rural farming and global export logistics.

Overview

Groep 91 Uitvoer, a family-owned agricultural enterprise, is a leading producer and exporter of citrus and macadamia products from the rural Letsitele region in Limpopo Province, South Africa.

As the business grew and expanded into global markets, it faced increasing pressure to modernise its technology infrastructure. Netsurit partnered with Groep 91 Uitvoer, to strengthen their IT environment—addressing rural connectivity challenges, improving operational reliability, and enabling smarter, data-driven decision-making.

The Challenge

Operating in a remote rural region made it difficult to establish stable and reliable network connections.

Unreliable power supply and inadequate IT support caused frequent downtime and disrupted daily operations.

Expanding production and export operations required stronger systems to support data-driven monitoring and decision-making.

The Solution

Reliable connectivity infrastructure

A stable network environment was implemented to overcome regional connectivity limitations.

Resilient IT environment

Power backup systems, including uninterruptible power supplies (UPS), were installed to reduce the impact of power outages.

Integrated and scalable systems

Cloud-based technologies and smart devices were introduced to support data management and improve operational efficiency across farming and export logistics.

Results That Matter

Reliable connectivity and reduced downtime streamlined daily operations.

Better data visibility enabled more informed planning and production decisions.

A stronger technology foundation helped Groep 91 Uitvoer meet international export standards.

A modern IT ecosystem created a platform for continued growth and future innovation.

“Netsurit didn’t just deliver an IT solution – they delivered peace of mind. In an environment where uptime and reliability are critical, they’ve proven to be a partner we can trust.”
